State v. Cox
No. 20160380

Per Curiam.

[¶1] Angela Cox appeals from a criminal judgment entered after she entered an open plea of guilty to delivery of a controlled substance, methamphetamine, a class A felony. Cox argues the sentencing court incorrectly concluded she breached her informant cooperation agreement. Her sentence was within statutory guidelines, and her arguments on appeal do not show the court relied on an impermissible factor. We summarily affirm under N.D.R.App.P. 35.1(a)(7); State v. Corman, 2009 ND 85, ¶ 15, 765 N.W.2d 530 (“[T]his [C]ourt has no power to review the discretion of the sentencing court in fixing a term of imprisonment within the range authorized by statute. Appellate review of a criminal sentence is generally confined to whether the [district] court acted within the sentencing limits prescribed by statute, or substantially relied upon an impermissible factor.” (quotations omitted)).
